Cookies Policy

When you enter and use our website and agree to accept cookies, some of these cookies may contain your personal data. Through the use of cookies, we can provide you with more user-friendly services that would not be possible without the cookie setting. For more information on what are cookies, what information they store, and how to deactivate them, please see below.

What are cookies?

Cookies are tiny text files that are placed on your computer, phone, and other devices by websites that you visit. They are widely used in order to make websites work, or work more efficiently, as well as to provide information to the owners of the site.
Our Cookies Policy describes what information the cookies we use gather, how we use this information and why we sometimes need to store these cookies. We also share how you can prevent these cookies from being stored, however, this may downgrade or 'break' certain elements of the site's functionality.

What information does a cookies store?

Cookies do not usually store sensitive information about you, such as credit cards or bank details, photographs or personal information, etc. The data they keep are of a technical nature, statistics, personal preferences, personalization of contents, etc.
The web server does not identify you as a person: it identifies your web browser. In fact, if you normally browse on Chrome and you try to visit the same page with Firefox or Internet Explorer, you will notice that the website does not realize that you are the same person, because the cookies are associated with the browser, not the person.

Types of cookies we use

This website uses first and third-party cookies. We use cookies to make your time on our site a much richer experience, to enhance the quality and functionality of our website, for traffic analysis and statistical purposes, etc. When a cookie is used, it will be downloaded onto your computer and stored on its hard drive. The cookie will collect general information, it will not identify you personally.

How to disable the cookies

You can prevent the setting of cookies by adjusting the settings on your browser (see your browser's Help tab for how to do this). Be aware that disabling cookies will affect the functionality of this and many other websites that you visit. Disabling cookies will usually result in also disabling certain functionality and features of this site. Therefore, it is recommended that you leave on all cookies if you are not sure whether you need them, or not, in case they are used to provide a service that you use. This is how to disable cookies in Chrome, Firefox, and Internet Explorer.
